

Abstract of the Disclosure

A message collaborator system and method establishes a relationship with more than one sender and a recipient.

- 5 Directives are contained in the profile defining each of the relationships and how information is to be filtered or established into or out of a message. Rules are provided for collaborating all of these profiles in order to pull content from multiple sources remotely or from local databases
- 10 containing content from the more than one sender, collecting the content into a single, comprehensive message and then delivering the single, comprehensive message to the recipient.
